SANDERS, PRESIDENT'S NEW SECRETARY

CAPITAL STIRRED BY SHAKE-UP SLEMP IS LATEST TO RESIGN.

Washington Has Seen in the Last Ten Days More Changes Than Can be Recalled in Any Other Like Period and Everybody is Asking Who Will be the Next to Go.

Resignation of Campbell Bascom Slomp as secretary to President Coolidge, following immediately on the heels of other sensational changes in the president's official circle threw the capital into a fever of expectancy. "Slomp is out. Who next?" was the question asked from one end of Washington to the other. Reports that Secretary of Commerce Hoover was preparing to withdraw and that Secretary Mellon would continue in the cabinet only long enough to supervise tax revision by the next congress revived. Mellon told friends Thursday no decision had been reached on his tenure of office. Under Secretary of State Joseph Grew, likewise was reported ready to resign.

Despite the president's assurance that he does not contemplate additional changes in the cabinet, the bombshell effect of the Hughes resignation and the Slomp retirement spread a feeling of uneasiness.

With all officialdom profoundly stirred by the manifest reorganization of of the presidential family in preparation for the new administration, there was a belief that other changes would ensue, perhaps not at the behest of the president, but by the moving force of example. All officials from time to time reach a stage in their official careers where they count the cost of public life and reach the point where they almost—but not quite—decide to give it up.

Washington has seen in the past 10 days more changes in high positions than can be recalled in any like period. The decision of Associate Justice McKenna of the supreme court to retire was the move that started the avalanche.

McKenna resigned and Attorney General Stone was nominated to succeed him. Charles B. Warren of Michigan, was named to succeed

Stone. Then before the capital regained its composure, came the smashing blow of the resignation of Secretary of State Hughes, and announcement of appointment of Ambassador Kellogg as his successor. A few hours intervened and Ambassador Houghton at Berlin was transferred to London. Less than 48 hours later came authoritative word from the White House that Slomp was going and Everett Sanders of Indiana, would assume his duties on March 4.

Still hanging fire are appointments to the Berlin embassy and the new secretary of agriculture.

Mr. Sanders is well equipped with a knowledge of congressional matters; he is rounding out eight years as a member of the house. He is a lawyer by profession and a former school teacher. At the Republican national convention in Cleveland last June he was proposed for the vice presidential nomination.

After closing with the Lord's prayer, a social hour followed during which a dainty lunch was served. Edward Ostott, of Columbus, was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Jackson Thursday.

C. A. C. WINS GAME FROM GROVE CITY

Basketball Fans Witnessed a Wonderful Game Thursday Night at the Gym.

With both teams playing air-tight basket ball, local fans were treated to a wonderful game at the C. A. C. gym Thursday night. From the first to the last whistle, just which would be the victor was in question. Altho the club boys lead the visitors all thru the game the margin was never over three points and most of the time by only one point, the visitors tying the score, once for a few minutes in the second frame.

The score at the half being 18 to 17 in favor of the C. A. C. In the second half the C. A. C. scored 13 points against Grove City's 12 points.

Never before have two teams been more evenly matched on the local floor. The club boys are credited with 13 field goals against Grove City's 12, each team making five free throw counts.

Steele was the principal point getter for the club scoring 17 points while Heskett showed up best for the visitors with 12 points.

In the preliminary game the Nelsonville girls defeated the C. A. C. girls by a score of 19 to 6.

Next Thursday night will be another hard game when the club goes up against the Arlington Collegians. This is a very strong team and will give the C. A. C. boys a big run for the game.

Referee Steele's work again pleased the crowd and the visiting team.

Potash-Producing Weed.
It is believed that the ash of bracken contains 40 to 50 per cent of soluble potash. In parts of Australia, where the weed grows abundantly, it has been found that a yield of 400 pounds of potash can be obtained per acre. The potassium occurs chiefly as sulphate and chloride.

Violets.
There are many myths and legends connected with the violet, which has been considered the good luck flower by many nationalities. In some places, English rural folk say a handful of the first violets found should be taken into the farmhouse, so good luck will be assured in the hatching of all the baby fowls of the barnyard.

Mohammed's Sweetmeat
One of the oldest dishes of which any record can be found is the Arabian "Khabs," which is said to have been invented and named by the Prophet Mohammed. It consists of fine selected dates coated with a mixture of honey and butter, and it is still a favorite dessert and confection among the Orientals, to whom the date is a staple food. It is interesting to note that the word "Khabs" has come to be used by the Arabs as a synonym for happiness.

AFRICAN ANTELOPE HARDEST TO CATCH

Their Horns Easily Harmed, Says Hunter.

New York.—The most difficult animal to catch alive is not the ferocious lion, the tiger, the elephant, the hippopotamus or the bear, but the African antelope, according to Ellis S. Joseph, who has spent a lifetime, nearly, studying the habits and the haunts of wild animals of the jungle and the forest. He has captured alive nearly every kind of animal known. His catches are always in great demand by zoological gardens and circuses.

Mr. Joseph claims Australia as his home, though it is apparent that he spends the greater part of his time in wild, out-of-the-way places, where wild animals and savages abide and where the face of a white man is still a strange and terrifying object. While in New York, Mr. Joseph makes his home at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

"The African antelope is extremely difficult to catch alive and unhurt," said Mr. Joseph, "because of its extreme delicacy, particularly of its horns. Unlike the horns of the elk or deer, the horns of an antelope are permanent. They do not shed them in certain seasons, and if these horns are broken or injured the damage is irreparable."

"The traps set for antelopes must be watched day and night. As soon as an antelope is captured the guards must rush forward immediately to prevent the high-strung animal from smashing his horns."

Lions Easily Caught.
"Lions, on the other hand, are the easiest animals to capture. A cage is made in the jungle by setting tall, strong stakes firmly in the ground, upon which a roof is fastened. A sliding door that drops from the top is then arranged with ropes, pulleys and weights in such a manner that the highest touch of a rope will cause the doors to drop. The rope is placed in such a position before the opening of the cage that the lion is sure to touch it as he bounds in to get at the bait—usually a live animal—which is used to lure him within."

"Once the door is slid into position Mr. Lion is securely captured. Then a cage with steel bars is rolled up to the trap, with its door just opposite the trap door. The door is then opened and just when the lion thinks he is making a dash for freedom, he finds himself securely fastened in the steel cage."

"Monkeys are captured by gulle. They are very fond of a certain variety of tuber that grows in profusion in Africa. Therefore snares are baited with this luscious food, and in that way they are easily captured. Once caught in the snare, the guards rush forward and throw nets over the heads of the monkeys, thus preventing them from escaping."

"I had a pet chimpanzee which I took with me on one of my journeys into the interior of West Africa. In the jungle I took the chain off my pet and let him roam at large in his native haunts. No, he did not run away and return to his natural element. He disappeared into the wilderness, but he returned after a few days, glad to see me again."

Home for a Visit.
"It was as though he had simply gone home to visit his relatives and told them that he was prospering in civilization and intended to remain among men. Thereafter the chimpanzee came and went at will. Sometimes he would be gone two or three days, but he always came back."

"Chimpanzees grow to be very large. It is not unusual for them to reach the weight of 300 pounds when full grown. It is not known just what the average length of their lives is. Eighteen years is the longest any have been known to live in captivity, but, on the other hand, the age when captured was not known."

"The chimpanzee is extremely intelligent, and there seems to be no limit to the things they can be taught. They become very attached to humans and are very affectionate and demonstrative—too much so at times. I had a big chimpanzee at one time in Australia. Once when going on a journey I left him in the zoo at Sydney until I should return. I was gone about eight months that trip."

"When I came back I went to see my pet. As I entered the cage he simply went crazy with delight at seeing me again. He threw his arms about me and began to bite my face, which is one of their ways of expressing affection. But this time his joy overcame his judgment, and instead of biting gently, as he meant to do, he just about tore my face to pieces. It took 43 stitches to close the wounds."

"The chimpanzee is about the nearest approach to man in the scale of animal life. I have been much interested in experimenting with fingerprints of these monkeys. So far I have finger-printed about fifty chimpanzees, and I find that there is as much difference in the prints as there is in the finger-prints of men."

If a long pendulum is set swinging with its point of suspension free to turn, the plane of swing will remain fixed while the rotating earth skews around under it. This is the finest demonstration of the earth's rotation, and recently at Wellington, New Zealand, a pendulum only ten feet long showed the rotation with 40 secs. after the swing began.

Sports Togs Hold Center of Stage

Wide Variety of Sweaters and Tweeds Offered for Outdoor Wear.

The winter season of sports is in full blast, calling for the gayest and warmest clothes. Athletic women take great delight in the bright-colored knitted sweaters, with the accompanying knitted caps, scarfs and other seasonable garb.

The redoubtable kasha, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, is once more turned to as the outstanding fabric for urban sports clothes and closely in its wake there follows a wide variety of London tweeds. The tweed vogue is, of course, distinctly English and makes its appeal to the many women who still cling to the ancient tradition of England and sports wear. It's a sound tradition, too, particularly for those feminine types which show to great advantage in mannish costumes.

Tweed and kasha trimmed with fur and many buttons form the basis of numerous clever little straight frocks that are suitable for all kinds of sport. There is an excess of leopard fur trimming, which borders or lines nearly everything, and where that is not obtainable tabby cat is substituted to such an extent that one trembles to think of the slaughter that must have taken place on the rooftops.

Yteb shows warm heather mixture colors—she has a clever country suit in light stone-colored tweed with a coat-dress under an overcoat, making an ensemble that is one of the prettiest of its kind. Incidentally, she is cutting her overcoats on a new line, slitting them up each side seam instead of at the back as formerly.

Many of the winter sports dresses are being made of soft wool serges on the type of kasha. A delightful model is of white wool trimmed with a vivid tomato-red leather. This has plaited fullness in the skirt and the sleeves are plaited as well.

Circular full length or three-quarter capes are always fashionable for slipping on over the sports costume and

HATCH EVERY HATCHABLE EGG

Tail of the Fox.

One of the most notable features of the fox is his large and massive tail, writes John Burroughs. Seen running on the snow at a distance, his tail is quite as conspicuous as his body; and, so far as appearing a burden, seems to contribute to his lightness and buoyancy. It softens the outline of his movements, and repeats or continues to the eye the ease and poise of his carriage.

Some Story.

Said the mournful man, "Someday, somebody, somewhere, somehow will get an inspiration and in the fervor of the hour will write a chunk of fiction that doesn't contain the word sordid, doesn't refer to the flotsam and jetsam of life and excludes all persons with hectic flushes."

The Brute.

Popperton—"The wife has gone shopping and left me in charge of the baby, and I'm blest if I know how to keep the beggar quiet." Grimshaw (after critically regarding the howling juvenile)—"I should think you could easily keep him quiet, both in a vocal and physical way, by gagging him carefully, tying his hands behind his back, binding his feet together, nailing his clothes to the floor, and then administering chloroform to him."

Egyptian Saw.

The saw appears to be the earliest tool in Egyptian history. It was found first in the form of a notched bronze knife, 5,000 years before the Christian era. There are no dated specimens until the seventh century before the Christian era, when the Assyrians used iron saws.

Jumbo Middy Pull-On Knitted in Scarlet and White Bandings.

The newest models are being made of tweed and have collars of fox or seal.

Scarves for sports wear are often made of fur allied with cloth or kasha. A pretty one worn with a little white suit in Paris had the neckband of white kasha on which was a narrow band of leopard. It was knotted in front and had two short wide ends on each of which was appliqued a triangle of the leopard.

Directoire Period Is Factor in New Fashions

In spite of many predictions that they would not achieve success, the models inspired by the fashions of the directoire period are distinct factors in the modes of the present season. In the majority of cases they are adaptations taken from the picturesque costumes worn by the men of that period, and they have been so skillfully modified that they are quite in harmony with the modern spirit.

The interest in things directoire has revived certain colors long absent from fashion. One finds tones of burgundy, of bottle green, of a rather violent purple and of a dull gold that are reminiscent of that particular period and the smooth-faced cloths and high-lustered satins suggest the materials in favor at that time.

Rhinestones on Tulle Bandeaux Hold Favor

The newest bandeaux for the ball are rhinestones on shaped bands of tulle. One lovely bandeau, intended for wear with an ecru lace creation is brown tulle shaped to a point in front with rhinestones embroidered in Russian design, leaving a wide margin of tulle at the peak. Others have the points at the side. A beautiful bandeau has rhinestone embroidery on a draped band of rose satin.

Charming accessories worn include crepe de chine scarfs, very wide, with fringe of ostrich, clusters of gold roses and silk hose in delicate shades.

MOFFAT TUNNEL CALLED GREATEST

Stupendous Engineering Task Is Well Advanced.

Denver, Colo.—The Moffat tunnel, passing the Continental Divide of the Rocky mountains west of here, and one of the world's greatest railroad bores, is nearly one-third completed and is 10 per cent ahead of the time schedule set by the builders.

To date the pioneer, or water, tunnel has been bored 6,500 feet from the east portal and 5,490 from the west portal, or more than one-third of the six-mile distance.

The main heading has penetrated James peak, 6,316 feet from the east portal and 4,700 feet from the west. The cross-cut tunnels connecting the main and water bores at intervals of from 1,300 to 1,500 feet have reached a total of 520 feet.

Each of these cross-cut tunnels is approximately 75 feet in length. The full-size railway tunnel has penetrated 3,094 feet from the east and 531 feet from the western portal.

At present the work of enlarging the main heading, which is being drilled 7 1/2 by 9 feet, to the full-size tunnel, which will be 16 by 24 feet, is proceeding twice as fast as the work at the front. At this ratio, tunnel engineers estimate, within a year this work will be abreast of the main heading.

The slowness of progress on the western end is accounted for by the fact that builders have encountered soft shale and dirt rather than solid rock. This necessitates timbering every foot of the way at a cost of more than $100 per linear foot.

At the east portal solid rock was found after the first few hundred feet and enabled the contractors to speed up the work materially.

CONCERT AT MEMORIAL HALL, HIGH CLASS ENTERTAINMENT.

Ellis E. Snyder, Baritone, and Lay G. Kohler, Pianist, Abundantly Proved Their Ability as Musical Artists.

Beyond question, the three hundred people who were privileged to hear Ellis E. Snyder, baritone and Lay G. Kohler, pianist, at Memorial hall Thursday evening were more than enthusiastic in their approval and praise of the wonderfully artistic manner in which both these young men entertained them and it goes without saying, that the efforts of the members of the Lutheran church of this city in preparing such high class entertainment for the citizens of Circleville, are worthy of honorable mention.

Mr. Snyder has been identified for some time with the Lutheran church of this city. In a very convincing and pleasing manner, with the splendid accompaniment of Miss Anna Schleyer, he proved beyond doubt that his ability as a director and teacher of vocal music is substantially supported by his accomplishments and development of his own voice.

No less can be said of Mr. Kohler's accomplishment at the piano. Nothing too fine could be said of the art and talent so prominently displayed in the reproduction of the difficult numbers selected by Mr. Kohler for this program. In words familiar to most of us "The Mason and Hamlin piano, used by him was made to talk."

Rust-Proof Wheat Found?

A new variety of wheat which will resist all attacks of rust, a species of marquis which is said to yield from four to six bushels to the acre more than the ordinary variety, has been developed by Samuel Larcombe, a prominent grain grower of Birtle, Man. The new wheat, says a Winnipeg dispatch to the New York World, has been tried out in areas in western Canada infested with rust and came through without damage, according to Larcombe.

Larcombe has been a Manitoba farmer for 30 years and in that time has won 3,000 prizes on wheat at Canadian and American expositions. He won the world's championship for wheat at the Peoria International fair in 1917 and in 1918, the sweepstakes for the best individual farmer's exhibit as well as sweepstakes for wheat in the dry farming section of the International Soil Products exposition in Kansas City.

AMUSEMENTS

The current attraction at the Met theater is a melodramatic novelty that has more human appeal than the usual melodrama. The picture is "The Silent Accuser," produced and directed by Chester M. Franklin and released by Metro-Goldwyn.

It is an innovation in screen entertainment in that it makes use of a situation never done before.

A highly intelligent police dog Peter the Great, is the only witness of the murder of the heroine's step-father. Thru the dog's almost human instinct, the hero escapes from prison after he has been accused falsely of the crime. Subsequently, in a story filled with adventure, romance, intrigue and thrills, the dog and the heroine, who dresses as a boy, assist the hero in catching the real criminal. The story was written by Jack Boyle and adapted to the screen by Mr. Franklin and Frank O'Connor, the assistant director.

The title role of "The Silent Accuser," is played by Peter the Great who is making his screen debut, and who thus leaps into immediate popularity. A large cast is headed by Eleanor Boardman, Raymond McKee and Earl Metcalfe. Charles Dreyer is responsible for the beautiful photography. Cedric Gibbons designed the sets, and Lloyd Nosler was film editor. Sophie Wachner made the costumes.

HARTMAN THEATER

Immediately following her very successful season in New York in the same play, Arthur Hopkins will present Ethel Barrymore at the Hartman theater, Columbus, for three days beginning next Monday, January 19, in Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's masterpiece, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." Miss Barrymore's many friends will be keenly interested in her appearance and the role of Paula that she has in this new play is another portrait to add to the many she has already portrayed.

The role of Paula in this famous play is said to crown Miss Barrymore's success as a star. The play has been staged by Mr. Hopkins himself and has been given unusual settings and scenes. Miss Barrymore is supported by a cast of equal caliber, which includes Henry Daniell, Lionel Pape, J. Colvin Dunn and Margot Kelly. There will be a matinee Wednesday. Mail orders now.

The last half of next week starting Thursday, January 22, thru Saturday, will bring another celebrated star to the Hartman theater—Jane Cowl in "Romeo and Juliet" and in "The Depths" a new play by Dr. Hane Mueller. Miss Cowl will be seen in "Romeo and Juliet," in which she has created such a sensation all over the country, on Thursday and Friday nights and on Saturday afternoon and in "The Depths" on Saturday night. With her will be seen Rollo Peters, as "Romeo" and also with her in "The Depths" besides a supporting cast that has been with her constantly for years. Mr. Peters is one of the best actors of the present day.

There has been an unusually heavy advance sale for both of these stars. It would be advisable to secure seats soon. There will be a Wednesday matinee of Barrymore and a Saturday matinee of Cowl in "Romeo and Juliet," and in "The Depths."

SAILLESS SAILING SHIP FOR FUTURE

New Invention Relies on Air for Power.

Berlin.—The sailing vessel of the future will be without sails if the new invention of Dr. Anton Flettner, known as the Flettner rotor, proves to be all that is claimed for it.

Instead of wooden masts, rigging and sails, the new equipment will consist only of metal masts, resembling smokestacks, revolved on their axis by a motor. Experiments with a 650-ton hull, fitted as above set forth, have shown that with one-fifth of the weight of the customary masts and sails the rotor ship can develop 15 times the wind power of the ordinary sailing vessel. The rotor ship does not have to be hauled out of the harbor by a tug—it starts the minute the cylinders, driven by a small Diesel motor, begin to rotate. This motor can be handled by one person on the bridge, and all the crew formerly necessary for sailing can be dispensed with. From an economic standpoint the inventor claims that from 30 to 80 per cent can be saved on fuel if the rotor device is installed.

The Hamburg-American line has ordered the construction of a 10,000-ton freighter which is to sail with rotors instead of sails, and the whole shipping world is inquiring into the adaptability of the invention to passenger ships.

The principle on which the new ship operates has been explained by Herr Freudenberg, Doctor Flettner's right-hand man, as follows:

Air Course Studied.

"Supposing a current of air strikes a smooth cylinder, such as a smokestack or the cylinder of our rotor, what will happen? The air will pass to the right and to the left of the cylinder about evenly. Now suppose one-half of the cylinder were covered with some rough surface, such as sandpaper, what would happen? The air current, following the lines of least resistance, would pass off toward the smooth side and only very little of it toward the roughened side.

"In other words, the air current will go where there is least resistance to it. Suppose next that we begin to turn the smooth cylinder by some mechanical means, such as an electric motor. As it revolves, one side of it, the disappearing side as you look at it from the front, will be moving in the same direction in which the air current is moving, while the other side will run counter to the air current. Naturally the air, following the lines of least resistance, will pass off toward the side where the cylinder turns with the wind.

"It follows that if the cylinder is turned faster than the velocity of the wind there is absolutely no friction on the one side for the air, and the whole current will be deflected to that side with such vehemence and with such crowding together of current that suction ensues on the side revolving with the wind, while on the side coming up against the wind a pressure against the cylinder is produced.

"This combination of suction on one side of the cylinder and of pressure on the other forces the ship forward and sails can be dispensed with."

Steel Supports Cylinders.

The revolving or rotating cylinders are mounted on strong masts of steel. In the case of the experimental ship, the Luckau, the steel masts projected above the deck for a distance of 40 feet, while the cylinders which are set upon the pivotal masts like hoods, were 25 feet higher. They revolve about the pivots on ball bearings and turn noiselessly. The motor, using only 2 per cent of the power that would be needed to drive the ship with a propeller, can turn the cylinders at the rate of about 110 revolutions a minute. In the case of a sailing vessel therefore 98 per cent of the power is produced by the wind acting upon the cylinders, while only 2 per cent is contributed by the small motor that one person can attend to.

The rotor ship can be made to reverse its direction by merely reversing the motor. To turn the boat about, one cylinder is made to turn in one direction and the other in the opposite, just as in rowing one turns by pulling at one oar and pushing the other.

The fact that the changes of speed or the reversing of the motor can be done instantaneously, makes it possible for the new ship to ride a storm quite as easily as it moves in clear weather.

The Flettner people look upon the rotor ship as a mere beginning along the road of gaining energy from the air. Some day the wind may be giving us heat, light and power, Doctor Flettner observes. He is therefore at work on the construction of a windmill or wind tower which, if perfected, will mean that the American farmer can reduce his coal bill to a minimum, and take energy out of the air. It will mean, the inventor declares, that flying across the ocean will become a simple thing, for instead of running the risk of getting out of fuel the aviator will draw his energy from the wind.

Spreading the Scriptures

If the present rate of distribution of the Bible is maintained the whole world may be supplied before the end of the century, says the New York Times. A high-water mark was reached last year, according to recent reports, when 30,000,000 copies of the Scriptures found their way into parts of all lands.

Of last year's total about one-fourth was the output of the American Bible society, an organization that since its birth 108 years ago has issued almost 160,000,000 volumes of Scriptures. For the second time in its history the society last year exceeded the 7,000,000-copy mark, an increase of 2,500,000 over the previous year.

Lawyer's Clients Defined

A group of lawyers was conversing on divorce subjects recently in one of the corridors of the courthouse. They were joined by a young member of the profession who was bitterly denouncing the stupidity of his client who had just been cross-examined on the witness stand, and had become hopelessly confused by the opposition.

"Why, the darn fool," the young man began, but was stopped by Henry Spaan, one of the attorneys in the group, who said:

"Young man, did you ever stop to think that were it not for the darn fools, we lawyers would be without means of support?"—Indianapolis News.

"None So Deaf"

"Bredren," said the colored preacher earnestly, "in some folks de still, small voice ob conscience keeps a-gettin' stiller and smaller, until at las' it'd sure had to learn de deaf and dumb langwidge ter attract deir attention."—Boston Transcript.

Here's Graphic Story of Boudoir Tragedy

The room was in a state of fearful disorder. Cupboards had been opened and their contents scattered here and there in the utmost confusion, says London Answers. Dresses and coats had been torn from their hooks and lay in crumpled heaps on the floor. Everywhere chaos reigned.

At first sight the room appeared empty, but through the gloom in one far corner a figure was discernible—the figure of a woman.

There she crouched, despair writ large on her beautiful face, the light of agony in her eyes. Her long black hair streamed loose over her shoulders and her face was flushed. Her whole attitude was that of a woman driven to desperation, of one who had received some dreadful injury and knew not which way to turn.

At last anger got the better of her. She drew herself erect with a gesture of indignation. Stretching her arms out she cried aloud:

"I cannot stand any more! It is already too much! I was so proud of you, and you have repaid my pride with torture!"

"You were the envy of all my friends and I gloried in their envy. Every glance that was cast at you filled me with an inward glow. But you are not what I thought you. What have you done? You have tortured me until I cried out in agony, and still for your beauty I love you."

She broke off, her breast rising and falling with the stress of her emotions. Her breath came in short, quick gasps. She rocked herself to and fro as she moaned in agony.

Suddenly there was a knock at the door.

"It is time!" said a voice from within.

The words seemed to spur the woman to action.

"Yes," she replied hysterically, "it is time. I have stood you in spite of everything. But now—now I will end it forever. I will cast you off!"

And with an imperious gesture she ripped the little dancing shoe from her foot and flung it from her.

It was lovely—but a size too small.

A Mystery.

One of the great mysteries of life is why the wise who admit they know so much seem always to own so little.

Magpie Superstitions.

The magpie has a lot of stories connected with his career. What I am going to tell you seems like nonsense, but it is a straight fact. The "mag" of magpie was originally Marguerite or Margaret, simmering down into a nickname, just as a lot of human Margarets are affectionately called "Mag" by their friends. Of the magpie it is said that to see one is a sign of bad luck, two good luck, three death, four a wedding.—Exchange.

Thrift in Italy
Savings deposits in Italy, according to the last report available, show a total of 21,500,000,000 lire. Of this amount 11,300,000,000 lire were in savings banks, 9,400,000,000 in postal savings and 750,000,000 in the pawn institutions called the Monti di Pietà. This total compares with a total of savings deposits of 300,000,000 lire in June, 1914. The decrease in deposits at the popular postal savings office has been 842 per cent, which is vastly greater than the depreciation of the currency and is taken to show how greatly the lower classes have improved their standard of living.—From Thrift Magazine.

BELIEVES MOUND BUILDERS INDIANS

Prof. John B. MacHarg Tells of Recent Explorations.

Appleton, Wis.—To the art of the mound builders, whose work is rapidly passing into oblivion in the wake of the man with the plow, Prof. John B. MacHarg, head of the department of American history at Lawrence college here, has devoted a mythical volume of almost forgotten lore.

After a personal trip of exploration made this summer to the prominent scenes of these primitive builders, Professor MacHarg concluded that nearly all of these structures were the work of Indians who lived during the last thousand years, although just when the Indian started his fashion of mound building no one could definitely say.

"From articles of European origin found in some of these mounds, however, it has been established that for a time, at least, mounds were built after the advent of the white man," said Professor MacHarg. "Art forms found in them also connected the latter-day mound builder with present-day Indians."

As to inclosures, used for defense or ceremonial purposes, the most spectacular are those near Newark, Ohio, extending over hundreds of acres. Ramparts, thousands of feet in extent, ten to thirty in height, outlining avenues, circles and other geometrical figures, were constructed and still are memorials of a considerable civilization.

Effigy mounds, or great animal pictures ranging in height from a few inches to a few feet, are most numerous in Wisconsin, but the most striking is in Adams county, Ohio, where one extends for a thousand feet in the shape of a serpent.

The snake mounds near Appleton, Wis.; the elephant mound of Grant county, Wisconsin; the man mound and the lynx mounds near Baraboo, Wis., are examples of effigy mounds known best to the initiated.

VALUE OF HUSBAND IS $1, SAYS JURY

Wife Who Sued for $50,000
May Take Appeal.

Millington, Tenn.—What is a sixty year-old husband worth?

Mrs. Fannie Burgner, fifty-six, named a price of $50,000.

A jury in Judge Ben L. Capell's court said he might be worth $1, but no more than that.

Whereupon Mrs. Burgner declared that she was going to prove that Daniel Webster Burgner, to whom she was wedded more than 35 years ago, is worth $50,000 if he's worth a dime, if she has to carry the matter up to the United States Supreme court.

"I'll admit he's a gay Lothario and awfully kittenish with the widows, especially those of the grass variety," Mrs. Burgner told the court, "but I value his love and himself as a husband at $50,000."

Daniel Webster Burgner's bosom swelled and he felt quite complimented when his wife sued Mrs. Mary Fleming, fifty-four, wealthy plantation owner, for $50,000 for "stealing my husband." The bill as filed by Mrs. Burgner's attorney described the offense as "alienation of affections."

"But I call it stealing," said Mrs. Burgner. "She stole Daniel Webster, didn't she?"

"Anyway, when the jury deliberated over the situation a few hours they decided that Mrs. Fleming had, at least, alienated Daniel Webster's affections, but they weren't worth over a dollar. So Mrs. Burgner was awarded $1 as compensatory damages for the loss by theft of her husband.

Feminine and financial charms, according to Mrs. Burgner, won away her husband's love. She alleged in her complaint that Mrs. Fleming presented Daniel Webster with "love gifts," ranging from "a nice red apple" to an automobile. Burgner was employed by Mrs. Fleming as her plantation manager.

"As to the widow presenting me love gifts," he testified, "I may have kidded my friends by telling them she had given me a horse, finger rings, an automobile and a gold watch, but I was just kidding—they didn't belong to me. And the widow didn't promise me a life of ease with all my heart could desire. That ain't so, I don't care what Fannie says."

Adopts 30 Children on Policeman's Salary

St. Louis.—Police Sergt. Joe Schneider has fathered thirty children in twenty years on a policeman's salary. Since 1904 his home has been a regular orphanage, seldom without at least a dozen youngsters living under his roof.

Schneider and his wife, never blessed with children of their own, first adopted the orphaned daughter of old friends. But the little girl, they soon saw, was lonesome without her old playmates. So they got some for her.

From then on adopting homeless youngsters became a habit with the Schneiders.

Until his recent promotion to a sergeantcy, Schneider was a traffic cop on St. Louis' busiest downtown corner. On that job he was paid $145 a month. Today he gets $165.

"But big pay," he tells you, "is only a late thing. It's only been a few years since we were getting $70 a month. And it's comparatively recently we were getting $90.

"Yet it was just as smooth traveling in the old $70 days as now—maybe more so. The wife runs the business of the household and she never gets in the 'red.' We live well and don't worry."

Don Juan, Jobless, to Face Forty-two Fiancees

Vienna.—A jobless clerk, Julius Grunwald, aged twenty-six, who has received the government dole for two years, has been arrested here after promising marriage to forty-two girls in Vienna and district and living handsomely upon money borrowed from them.

His forty-second betrothed became suspicious and caused the arrest. When the young man was searched by the police an extraordinary diary was found in his pocket, containing precise details of his many daily engagements, the meeting-places, and the name to be assumed in each case by Grunwald, who used eighteen aliases. The forty-two fiancees must all give evidence against him.

Levi Leiter's Grandson Now Earl of Suffolk

London.—From a poky little cabin aboard a tramp steamer to the luxury of a Jacobean mansion was the quick change of circumstances experienced recently by the seventeen-year-old earl of Suffolk.

The earl had been knocking around the world in the steamer Mount Stewart, sharing the hard life and food of sailors for about 18 months, when the death of the old earl was announced. The young man's ship had just arrived at Nantes with a cargo of nitrate from South America, and he immediately said good-by to his shipmates and hurried to the family seat, Charlton house, near Malmesbury.

People in the district are wondering whether the young earl will settle down to society's ways, or whether the travel temptation inherited from his American mother, a daughter of the late Levi Leiter of Chicago, will lure him away to fresh adventures.

Greeting Cancels Stamp

One of the most original stamp cancellations ever put on a piece of United States mail was that used by the postmaster at Cassville, Wis., June 25, 1882, when he wrote "Good Morning, Edward" across the stamp when he recognized the name of the addressee as that of one of his personal friends.

Free speech is to a great people what winds are to oceans and malarial regions, which waft away the elements of disease, and bring new elements of health; and where free speech is stopped, miasma is bred and death comes fast.—Henry Ward Beecher.

A dictaphone with a megaphone and a loud-speaking amplifier in the receiver is shown in Popular Mechanics Magazine. With the receiver fastened to the baby's crib in the nursery upstairs, and the megaphone placed in the parlor below, the arrangement works to satisfaction. New Models—and Fords

EVERY NEW FORD IS A NEW MODEL

It is the custom of most manufacturers to keep all their improvements for a year and then feature them in a new model. This gives a stimulant to the sales of that car once a year. Every shipment of Ford cars we receive is improved over the last, so EVERY NEW FORD CAR IS A NEW MODEL.

A few of the improvements in the last month are:

- More accessible crank case opening
- Light pistons to give less vibration.
- Improved distribution of oil in transmission.
- Increase in volume and pressure in oiling system.
- More steel and less wood in closed car bodies.

You don't have to wait a year for improvements in Fords, each car is improved over the last one. Too many of our new prospects are going to buy in the spring, they are going to be disappointed, at least some of them are going to wait, or take some inferior car.
